

The Solar System - from the Sun to Pluto

A lecture by Ross Hockham, UK Astronomy

Wednesday 26th March 2025, 6.00pm - 7.00pm

(Tea and coffee served from 5.45pm)

Lillingstone Trust Community Laboratory

Discovery Centre, Royal Latin School, Buckingham, MK18 1AX

Ross Hockham was just one man in a field with a telescope and a passion to help show others the wonders of our skies. He is now an award-winning educator, humbly earning recognition through several prestigious awards, including the British Citizen Award for Education, a Points of Light Award bestowed by the Prime Minister, an Innovation Award from the Royal Latin School and the honour of being selected as one of Their Royal Highnesses' Coronation Champions for his unwavering dedication and service to his community.

During this lecture, you will have the opportunity to hold models of the Sun, planets and the Moon, while discovering facts about them, including how to spot them in the night sky. All enhanced with captivating visuals from NASA and the UK Astronomy members.
